Peter G. Cook is President of Peter G. Cook Consultancy Inc., a consultant to Hypres, Inc., and an officer of the SDR Forum. He is retired from Motorola, Inc. Mr. Cook has worked on a variety of computer and communications systems, including the Motorola DMR SDR product line, Smart Cards, Iridium, Cellular Base Stations, and the Codex ATM switch. He was previously in Corporate R & D for Motorola, and served as Motorola liaison to the MCC research consortium in Austin, Texas. He was Vice President of software for Four-Phase Systems.

Prior employers include Tektronix, Inc. where he was responsible for the Plot-10 computer graphics software, and Corning, Inc. where he was Director of Information Technology.

Mr. Cook has a Bachelor's degree in Physics from Williams College, and has done graduate work in Electronic Engineering and General Systems. Lieutenant Colonel Cook is a retired US Air Force Pilot and Communications Officer, and a graduate of the Air War College.